19:13:32 From Jules to Everyone:

From Lauren (Loz) who advised she could not make it tonight, but wanted to pass on this info. -

" FROM 6:26min (listen for about 1 min) mark from this interview with Didi Conn (Frenchy from GREASE) on Channel 7...she brings up a reference to her own 'lesion in my brain...they reckon it was because of the booster....' - not sure if it's been scripted, but it took me by surprise and even if it is scripted in (or she was paid to say it), still a good thing it was on live tv! (Albeit MSM)"

Here's a survey/petition from AVAAZ (rather favourable to WED/WHO/UN) that they intend to table to the UN...

Feel free to submit to it - with your thoughts on why One World Control IS NOT acceptable.

https://secure.avaaz.org/UN_reform_EN_loc

From the climate crisis to Covid-19, the challenges of our time don't respect national borders – they are global. So our response to them must be too.

The United Nations has been the boldest and most visionary experiment in international cooperation in the history of humanity – but in some important ways it's broken. Too remote. Lacking teeth. Dominated by too few powerful nations.

"The UN Secretary General knows this, and has set up a major global consultation to gather public input on how to make the UN work better. It closes in days – so we're asking Avaazers across the planet to take a very short survey on what we all want from the UN. Let's all take it, and the results will be formally submitted to the UN reform process!"

19:56:12 From Michael Offe to Everyone:

"When it emerged from the wreckage of World War Two, the UN represented a giant step forward in how humanity was governed. And from responding to humanitarian crises to tackling the ecological emergency the UN has played a crucial role in shaping our world for the better.

But with humanity facing multiple urgent existential crises, it needs to evolve. Without highly-functioning global governance, it's much harder, maybe impossible, to meet the challenges we face.

There are simple things that could help, like reforming decision-making, and securing a greater role for citizens to suggest policies and choose an excellent Secretary General to lead the UN. But to stand a chance to win them, we have to make our voices heard. Loud and clear."
