Good News story from France: Email received today: I've been in France for three months now. Their approach to this is simply fantastic. France has been rioting for months! The mainstream media, when it covers this situation at all, says that it is only about a 2-year increase in the age of retirement. It isn't!

I'd like to share a bit about it. A very well known supermarket here decided to go cashless.

A group of 50 people got together and agreed that they would all do a big shop on the same day. Pilling their trolleys to the brim and each person getting to the checkout - the human check out, not the machines - and having everything scanned before bringing cash out.

The staff were absolutely overrun. Their management in a complete tizz, everyone repeatedly, calmly and in a very organised and polite fashion acting as if they knew nothing. No edges, no rudeness, no humiliation.

The supermarket reinstated cash.

Petrol stations : filling up with fuel then only having cash to pay.

Restaurants : gr
