Hello everyone

19:04:56 From Vicki B to Everyone:

Getting in early with my written good news story Charles/Julie. So I went to Officeworks today to print off the WHO awareness flyer I'm going to deliver around my neighbourhood. Anyone who needs the link, here it is below. You can download and print yourself, print as I did or you can get them to send you some for a cost. 100 double sided flyers cost me $39. We need to get the message out there! <https://alignedcouncilofaustralia.com.au/>

I use Lauke flours to make my own bread in a breadmaker. I wrote to Lauke this week asking if they dissicate the wheat to enable early harvesting. They replied that they do not do this. Thus I think their flour is safe to buy. This is what they are actually said: Good Afternoon, Anthony,

Not only do we reject grain that has had artificial growth stimulation. We have agreements in place to limit the number of herbicides and pesticides that can be used on the grains we purchase. On top of restrictions of treatment during grain growth, there can also be nothing at all treated on the grain or the ground 30 days before harvest.

We also have Organic Stoneground, Wholemeal and Wallaby which have no artificial treatments at all at any point of the growing and harvest process.

We hope this reassures you that we take the quality of our grain seriously, so our customers know they are getting the best we can deliver.

Happy Baking!

Kind Regards,

Erica
