Rod Culleton posted this to his GAP facebook page about the bills in the Senate:
Regarding the latest bills for the Australian Senate....

The senate is well within it's rights to reject the numbers of bills being submitted as an abuse of parliamentary process.

Tell your senators to reject the bills as they have not been given ample time to consider what is being proposed at law.

This is a serious abuse of the democratic process. I often wonder what is in people's minds when they vote for the major parties, because this is a clear example of them bullying their way through parliament without all representatives considering what is being proposed.

Senators need to play their role here!!! If they don't reject these, they are not following proper due process and giving true bonafide representation to the Australian people....
