Build up the hill a tad.

Tad is a bit or a small amount; we suggest 20 m, whenever reasonably possible.

Motion by Gerard C ph 0411 144 881 probably for the next general meeting of the Glasshouse Country Branch of LNP, or, as information to persons, as emailed.

Motion next item (to fit in the space):

19:11:01 From Gerard C to Everyone:

Given that LNP State Conference in July 2024 passed a motion recognising that there have been global warming periods in history including in Scotland in Roman times and England in the 1600's, together with cooling periods, and that we have a warming period now, we suggest that future Liberal and National Party governments should, when reasonably feasible, build infrastructure at least more than 20 metres above the current 2024 sea levels so that this infrastructure will be safe if 10% of Antarctic ice melts, which could result with a six-metre rise of sea waters, and be safe from the suggested increasing level of storms, along with earlier and later cyclones, and beach erosion. Whether warming is man-made or a natural cycle, it is actually happening; therefore, we must where reasonably possible, build on higher land.

Dick might change his name....

19:14:28 From Gerard C to Everyone:

Statement of 300 words for LNP:

Americans think adding 2° to a 100°F hot day is negligible. Australians think adding 2° to 40°C is manageable. But, the average temperature of the Earth - Summer, Winter, day, night, tropic polar - was 14°C in about 1970. Adding 2°, or 3° is serious. "Researchers gather in Hobart for 'emergency summit' on future of Antarctica" ABC TV news Tuesday 19.11.2024, and "Air pollution in India's capital city deemed 'severe plus'; city engulfed in smog".

In many 1970's winters, farmers in high-country areas like Toowoomba 700m (perhaps Yelarbon 240m) would break the ice on cattle troughs maybe forty times. In 2024 maybe just five times. Now, you understand there is global warming.

19:14:29 From Vicki B to Everyone:

So can we share this now Julie??

19:15:06 From Gerard C to Everyone:

Long-standing year-round ice at North Pole has already melted, and reforms slightly during their winter. This is ice on water so its melt does not add to sea level rise. The ice of Antarctica and of Greenland is ice on land and seabed. So, when this melts, sliding into the ocean, sea levels rise. Antarctica & Greenland are about 15 million sq km; the area of the oceans is about 300 million sq km; about twenty times. So, every metre of ice melted from across these areas adds about 5cm to all the oceans. The ice is about 1500m to 2,000 m thick or three times the height of Mt Beerwah. So, 5% is 100m, and this melt will add about 3-4 m to all sea-levels; oh, only twice a day at high tide. This melt is quite likely to be more than 5%.

19:15:37 From Gerard C to Everyone:

So, where ever reasonably possible we must build new schools, hospitals & infrastructure some 20m above the current 2024 sea levels; that's often less than a km from the coast. (If all the ice did melt, sea levels around the world would rise 60m.)

We should also re-build flooded towns on a neighbouring hill. Texas Qld flooded in about 1920, so the town was rebuilt just up the hill away from the Dumaresq River.

19:15:52 From Julie Parker to Everyone:

Ban Dic Dan website

<https://e2d.e8f.myftpupload.com/>

19:16:07 From Gerard C to Everyone:

Motion: Gaza homes

And second motion.

When rebuilding in Gaza, instead of blocks of government owned flats, consider single storey and two storey homes each on their own separately titled land in the direct ownership of families with both men and women as owners, or women as sole owners, within villages.

Statement: This will change Gaza into a nation of 'home owners' and improve the citizenship of women so that they are actually regarded as equal to men. The homes can have their own solar electricity, and deep cycle batteries instead of lithium and can have their own water tanks. And have their own vegetable gardens and fruit trees, and ability to run home businesses. Thus, individual persons have independence instead of dependence upon an all-powerful state. Gradually, the government 'desire' to steal from neighbouring countries decreases.
