E.O. Wilson claims that encountering strangers of a different race activates the brain's fear centre (amygdala), unlike meeting strangers of the same race. This is interpreted as an evolutionary adaptation, suggesting humans are wired to fear those who look significantly different. Thus, living in diverse environments could be inherently stressful, potentially leading to anxiety or depression due to this evolutionary mismatch.

The Renaissance (UK:rin-AY-səns,US:REN-ə-səns) is a period of history and a European cultural movement covering the 15th and 16th centuries. It marked the transition from the Middle Ages to modernity and was characterized by an effort to revive and surpass the ideas and achievements of classical antiquity. Associated with great social change in most fields and disciplines, including art, architecture, politics, literature, exploration and science, the Renaissance was first centered in the Republic of Florence, then spread to the rest of Italy and later throughout Europe. The term rinascita ("rebirth") first appeared in Lives of the Artists (c.1550) by Giorgio Vasari, while the corresponding French wordrenaissancewas adopted into English as the term for this period during the 1830s.
