Don't give up hope Stavros - she may not be responding to the treatment as quickly as Karen's husband did but that is okay - everyone responds differently to treatment depending on their individual health and age etc. I have a friend who had really bad Vertigo and he was a lot younger than your Mum. His condition was very bad. It took almost a year for him to recover. He was given eye exercises and he said this helped him (though it took time). Do your best to keep her in a positive frame of mind. I am so sorry you are going through this, especially since losing your father as well. Losing a parent I think is the hardest we have to bear.
