FAMILY FARMS & HUMAN FREEDOMS

Ten Powerful Quotes on Why Independent Family Farms Preserve Liberty

Independent family farms have always been the bedrock of freedom. They give farmers the economic independence to resist government overreach and corporate control. When family farms disappear, people move to cities and dependence on the state grows. Industrial hemp offers today's family farmers a new path to income, soil health, and true self-determination.

Thomas Jefferson (1787)

"Cultivators of the earth are the most valuable citizens. They are the most vigorous, the most independent, the most virtuous, and they are tied to their country and wedded to its liberty and interests by the most lasting bands."

Thomas Jefferson

"The small landowners are the most precious part of a state."

G.K. Chesterton (early 20th century)

“Unless the great majority of men in a country own their home, the ground it stands on, and their means of livelihood, the citizens of that country cannot be free.”

Wendell Berry

“If the scale of their farming is small enough, (farmers) like to work in the company of their children and with the help of their children. They love the measure of independence that farm life can still provide.”

James Hector St. John de Crèvecoeur (1782)

“Where is that station which can confer a more substantial system of felicity than that of an American farmer possessing freedom of action, freedom of thoughts, ruled by a mode of government which requires but little from us?”

Joel Salatin (2011)

“You shouldn’t have to ask the government’s permission to sell a bowl of tomato soup to your neighbor.”

Wendell Berry (1990)

“The industrial economy alienates people from the native landscape... The agrarian mind begins with the love of fields and ramifies in good farming... and gratitude to God.”

Gene Logsdon (1993)

“Corporate farming is the death of independence. When the last family farm is gone, so is the last real resistance to centralized power.”

Victor Davis Hanson (1995)

“The family farm was the cradle of Western liberty. When it disappears, democracy itself is endangered.”

Joel Salatin (2014)

“If we lose the family farm, we lose the last bastion of true freedom in America. Urban dependence on government and corporations will be total.”

A Call to Action

Support family farmers. Grow hemp. Preserve liberty.

Strong family farms = strong resistance to overreach.
