How much money does Ahstralia pay to the WHO?

2026-06-26 19:24:00 From Julie - Dental Business Mastery to Everyone:

Replying to "How much money does Ahstralia pay to the WHO?":

Australia contributes to the World Health Organization in two main ways:

Assessed contributions, which are compulsory membership dues paid by all member countries.

Voluntary contributions, which Australia chooses to provide for specific health programs and emergencies.

For the 2024 and 2025 WHO budget period, Australia's compulsory assessed contribution is:

US$12.12 million per year

US$24.24 million across the two-year budget cycle

2026-06-26 19:24:14 From Julie - Dental Business Mastery to Everyone:

Replying to "How much money does Ahstralia pay to the WHO?":

In addition to this, Australia also makes voluntary contributions. According to the WHO's funding database, Australia has provided approximately:

US$27.7 million in specified voluntary contributions during the current 2024–25 funding period. These are directed towards particular programs rather than the WHO's general budget.

Total

So, for the current 2024–25 period, Australia's contributions are approximately:

Compulsory (assessed): US$24.2 million

Voluntary: US$27.7 million

Total: about US$51.9 million (approximately A$80 million, depending on the exchange rate)
